Friday, June 7. 1706.

From the Paris Gazette, dated May 29.

Warsaw, April 30.

WE have had a Rumour in this City several Days, that a Treaty is made between the Czar and the King of Sweden.

What makes it probable, is, that the Muscovite Troops that were at Grodno and Tykoczin and last at Brescici on the Bug, are march'd to Volhinia to return into Muscovy: that the Czar himself, who was advanc'd to Minsky, went back to Orska on the Borysthene, and from thence is gone to Smolensko, follow'd by General Mazeppa. Besides, the Letters from Lithuania of the 17th Instant tell us, that General Baur, after having blown up the Fortifications of Mittau and Dinsk in Courland, continued his march towards Birken in Samogitia, committing great Disorders; that he had had great Contests with General Rosen, but that the latter having sent his Baggage to the Ducal Prussia, had taken the same Route after him: That almost all the foreign Officers who had Employment in the Muscovite Troops, had left the Service in great Discontent; and that thereupon the Czar had sent Prince Menzikow to take upon him the Command of the Army which was under General Ogilvy while it lay encamp'd at Grodno. All these Advices give ground, to believe the Czar has made an Accommodation with the King of Sweden.

From the Paris Gazette, dated June 5. Hamburg, May 21. Advices from Cracow of the 6th of this Month say King Augustus of Poland had been very much disturb'd at the Rumour spread that the Czar was making Peace with the King of Sweden; but that Prince Dolgoruki who arriv'd at Cracow the 20th of last Month, made a Speech to him in French in his first Audience, in which he assur'd him that the Czar his Master had drawn off his Troops for no other Reason, than to reinforce them with others, and march back into Poland with a more powerful Army. Notwithstanding this King Augustus has sent the Bishop of Cujavinto Muscovy, to traverse any such Negotiation and endeavour to discover the true Intentions of the Czar.

From the Leiden Gazette, dated June 8.

Warsaw, May 21. The last Advices from Lithuania inform us, that the King of Sweden with his Army, having follow'd the Muscovites and Cossacks into Volhinia, his Vanguard commanded by General Steinbock, had fallen on the Rear of the Muscovites and kill'd or made Prisoners above 1000 Men; and that the Swedes were laying several Bridges over the Narew near Plask and Strabla, in Order to get over their Artillery and Baggage.

From the Leiden Gazette, dated June 11.

Warsaw, May 29. We have Advice, that Zabiers and Lachowitz have surrendred at Discretion to the Swedes. That the Muscovites have abandon'd Samoz. But that at the same time the King of Sweden has been forc'd to come back from Volhinia with his Army, the Muscovites having in their March laid waste the Country behind them, so that the Swedes could not follow them for want of Subsistence.

From the Antwerp Courant, dated June 11.

Dresden, June 2. The Advices from Poland give us some Ground to fear that the Muscovites do not deal faithfully with King Augustus. The Swedish General Reinchild is marching with 12000 Men towards Cracow.

Hamburg, June 4. The King of Sweden is following the Muscovites. 'Tis reported the Czar is gone from Smolensko to Moscow; and some Advices from Kiew say a Peace between the Swedes and Muscovites is far advanc'd, and like to be concluded in a little Time.

From the Amsterdam Courant, dated June 7.

Hamburg, June 8. The Advices from Poland are, that the Muscovites continue their March for their own Country. The Czar of Muscovy has given Order for his Fleet, consisting of 10 Frigates, 10 Brigantines, 11 Gallies, 3 Bomb-Ships, 4 Fireships, and 40 small Gallies, to put to Sea from Petersburg; and designs himself to go aboard one of the Brigantines to seek and fight the Swedish Squadron.
